Recovery Comments

It is known in the AA program that alcoholics are allergic to the chemical alcohol, which causes in them a physical craving and mental obsession which lead to uncontrolled drinking. Like most alcoholics who come to AA, I thought that my problem was just drinking and that stopping drinking would make me ok. However, I have learned to accept and believe that the drinking was only a symptom which supports the disease concept of alcoholism. We must stop drinking, of course – removing the symptom and the catalyst to dependency - before we are able to experience and treat the spiritual, mental and physical aspects of the disease. In AA, this is done by not taking the first drink, working the 12 Steps under direction of a sponsor, attending meetings for reinforcement and “practicing these principles in all affairs” as the Big Book states. Sobriety date: November 11, 1983. Dave A. CC, TX

I didn't take a drink until I was 18 years old, a couple of years after that I became a daily drinker for 23 years. I imagine I was legally intoxicated nearly every day during that period of years although I was functional and lived my life that way which included work, marriage, daily exercise, a healthy diet and some achievements. In those days I considered myself “sober” when I was not in the act of pouring alcohol down my throat; that is, I judged myself sober even on the days after previous evenings of heavy drinking, not realizing that I was in an addictive cycle of self-destruction and that my drinking pattern had impact on my judgment and everything I thought and did. I have read that traces of alcohol can be found in the bloodstream up to one year after an alcoholic takes his last drink let alone the next days after a bender.

During my drinking days I was fired from jobs, including my first teaching-coaching job right after college graduation and also had several car accidents. Most notable was one in which I raced a Rock Island 100 car freight train and the race ended in a tie at a rural crossing. That happened on a day when I was sober according to my way of thinking in that the accident took place about noon and I had not had a drink since the night before. But, of course, I was affected by the large amount of alcohol still in my system. The saying goes that first the alky takes a drink, then the drink takes a drink, then the drink takes the alky – I understand well what it means as I was immersed in that game for years.

My craving ebbed and flowed with mixed results in my daily life – a few times I was able to control my drinking for short periods: at one stage I quit drinking entirely for 9 months on doctor's orders regarding liver damage. At the end of the 9 months, I was quickly back into my regular pattern of daily, heavy drinking. Years later, in 1983, I looked at myself in the mirror early one Sunday morning and decided to call the White House, an Alano club in a large, old Victorian home in Des Moines, Iowa. I made that call at 7 a.m. on a Sunday and the guy on the other end suggested I come there immediately as the club was open and he would be glad to talk to me. I made the trip, talked to an old timer, who showed me around the place and invited me to a beginner's meeting scheduled at 7 p.m. that evening. He then asked, “Can you avoid drinking anything today, we'd like you to come to the meeting dry?” I said that I could but in doing so I knew I was in for a rough 12 hours without my usual Sunday afternoon beer swilling. I made the meeting dry, but what a struggle.

I showed up at the meeting that evening, called myself an alcoholic and took a first step in the long and uncertain road to recovery. However, although I did attend meetings regularly I still would drink occasionally yet doing all in my power to control it, not yet working the AA 12 Steps. I had read a report written by a corporate M.D. who said in advising his patients who were company employees, that he used the baseline of 3 drinks a day to determine alcoholism. That is, he said that if someone wanted to test themselves they could try to take 3 drinks (a 12 oz beer or 1.5 ounce shot of hard liquor he called a drink) or less per day over a 90 day period, never exceeding the 3 drink daily limit. This doctor thought that if you could control your drinking in that manner for 90 days you probably were not alcoholic - thinking that the craving would take over at some point if the drinker was an alky. I tried that test and passed it. During the 90 day period, I took a trip to Hong Kong and had to carefully plan to accommodate the International Dateline in my 3 per day drink limits. I was ok for the 90 days, but the 91st day I was back in my pattern of heavy, daily drinking. Looking back on that experience, I can see that the need to try a plan of control was a sure sign of alcoholism along with denial that I was alcoholic.

I started attending daily AA meetings in '82 yet really trying to convince myself and others that I didn't belong there by making comparisons with other drinking stories. Finally, an older guy at the meeting confronted me and said, "Only you can determine if you are alcoholic. However, I'd like to ask a couple of questions which might help you in the process." I agreed and he asked me if I thought I was an alcoholic I thought a few seconds and said "Yes, probably." He then asked if I got drunk frequently and I had to reply "yes, nearly every day." Third question was did I have problems because of my drinking and again I had to reply that I did have problems resulting from drinking – like accidents and being fired from jobs, etc. He then made a final comment after the questions, "One other thing. I notice you have been to this meeting on a regular basis for about 6 months . . . social drinkers do not usually attend AA meetings."

The advice I received got my attention and I then committed to sober living. The interaction was exactly what Bill Wilson intended for the AA program to be – one alcoholic helping another. However, early sobriety did not go smoothly. At the end one year of abstinence and attending meetings, I fell into a downward spiral of depression and had to spend time in the psych ward of a Des Moines hospital, which I call my "bottom." Although I had done an extensive 4th and 5th step, I still had wreckage of the past which was blocking my path and which I had to revisit with my sponsor.

After leaving the psych ward, an important wake-up call in my recovery, I began to sincerely practice the AA principles in all my affairs and focus on living (the AA way) one day at a time. Sobriety gives us all the opportunity to use HP's gifts the way they that were intended.

Working the 12 Steps Every Day

When I first saw the 12 Steps, they were on the wall at my first meeting. I thought they were like Pool Rules, displayed beside the swimming pool at the Country Club, mainly there to limit the club's liability for accidents.

After a few more meetings I had heard people talk about the steps and my thinking evolved to "12 Steps; 12 Weeks; All Better." I thought if I applied myself and did them right (with my engineering background), I would only have to work them once and then I could put them behind me and get on with my life. 31 years later I am still not done and the end is nowhere in sight.

Early on, a wise old timer told me "Instead of trying to put the program into your life, it would work better to put your life into the program." Did I mention that I believe the steps are the program. (It comes with a lovely fellowship, but the 12 steps are the program of recovery.) When I came to Texas from Connecticut to visit my parents in 1985, I heard a cowboy say, "If you haven't worked all 12 Steps with a sponsor, you're walking around with an untreated case of alcoholism." The steps have become the way I do life.

And if I want to stay sober, I think I had better work all 12 Steps every day. This is not as daunting as it seems.

My morning / evening prayers and meditation cover steps 1 – 3.

- When I ask God to keep me sober in the morning and thank him at night, I'm working Step 1 again.
- When I say the Third Step Prayer, I'm working Steps 2 and 3.
- All my prayers and transcendental meditation covers Step 11.

My daily 10th Step inventory (review my day, admit where I was wrong and do what I need to do to make things right) covers Steps 4 – 10.

Step 12 involves carrying the message to others and everything else I do in my daily life (practicing these principles in all my affairs.)

Working all 12 steps with adult supervision from a sponsor is what taught me how to do this and laid the groundwork for my daily spiritual practices.

New CBIA Trustee

New CBIA Trustee

Harold B. (Weber Road Nooners Group) was elected to the CBIA Board for the remaining term of a Trustee who has left the board (i.e. through January 2017). Harold has been Treasurer of the Coastal Bend Jamboree and is Alternate Group Service Representative for his home group. He will be our Financial Trustee.

Other Board Actions

The board also decided to eliminate two committees which were created last year:

- Web Site. Glenn B., Phyllis I., Tom K., and Rob M. did a great job of replacing the CBIA website with the new and improved web site we have today. However, we don't anticipate major changes in the near future and the office staff can maintain the new web site.
- Outreach. If you were upset by visits to your group by the Outreach Committee, we apologize. We won't be doing this in the future. If you were a member of the Outreach Committee, we thank you for your service. We believe everyone who worked on this had good intentions. As we see it, the problem was with the basic premise of outreach, not with the people who carried it out.
